

70 YEAR OLD LADY GAINED 20 POUNDS BY TAKING TANLAC

Well Known North Carolinian, Who Suffered 20 Years, Now
Walks Up-town.

To gain twenty pounds in weight at the ripe old age of 79 years is just what Mrs. L. B. Horney, of 722 North Main street, High Point, has enjoyed through 4 bottles of Tanlac. This venerable lady is loved by hundreds of her townspeople who marvel at her remarkable change in health, for Mrs. Horney had suffered for the past 20 years.

"Why, I feel so good all over that I can walk up-town now—a distance of 1 square—and my friends tell me I look 10 years younger," Mrs. Horney said. "Only a short time back I was barely able to walk about the house. I would suffer from heart fluttering and after everything seemed to turn black before me. I would fall, helpless. I lost in weight and strength until I was nearly completely run-down. During those 20 years or more of my life I was treated by five different physicians and took every kind of medicine I heard of without getting lasting relief. I was very low when I heard of Tanlac through a relative.

"From the start Tanlac did the work. My appetite returned and with it came strength and an increase of 10 pounds in weight. Heart trouble has left me. If 5 bottles of Tanlac can work such a change in a woman of my age, I feel it a duty to tell about it. It is now 4 months since I finished the last bottle and I keep on gaining right along."

Tanlac is sold in Hendersonville only at Hunter's Pharmacy.

HIGH POINTS IN CAREER OF WOODROW WILSON.

Thomas Woodrow Wilson was born at Staunton, Va., December 28, 1856, the son of Rev. Joseph R. and Jessie Woodrow Wilson. His ancestry was Scotch Irish on both sides. At two years his parents took him to Augusta, Ga., where he spent his early boyhood and entered school.

In 1870 the Wilsons moved to Columbia, where his father became minister of the Presbyterian church. "Tommy" continued his schooling here until 1873, when he entered Davidson (N. C.) College. In 1874 the family moved again, to Wilmington, N. C., the future President with them. The next year he entered Princeton University, being graduated in 1879 after taking honors as a debater and a writer on political economy. It was while in Princeton that Wilson laid the foundations for his broad knowledge of economics and international law that later landed him in the presidency.

After taking a year's law course at the University of Virginia, Wilson started practicing law at Atlanta in 1881. 1883 he entered Johns Hopkins University for a two years' course in history and political economy.

In 1875 at Savannah Woodrow Wilson (he now had dropped the Thomas) married Miss Ellen Louise Axson, whose father, like his own, was a Presbyterian clergyman. For three years he taught political economy and history at Bryn Mawr, then for two years at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

Then he became professor of jurisprudence and politics at Princeton, and in his thirteenth year as professor there was elected president of the university in 1902.

In his eight years' service as the university's head, during which he democratized the institution (it had been known as a "club for rich men's sons"), Wilson attracted the attention of Col. George Harvey, noted New York editor, who fathered the Wilson presidential boom.

In 1910 Wilson resigned as Princeton's president, after being over-ruled in a dispute with the trustees. The same year he was elected Governor of New Jersey, and immediately started a fight which ended in the demolition of the bipartisan machine that had ruled the State, and restored popular government.

His governmental exploits in New Jersey led to Wilson's nomination for the presidency by the Democrats in 1912, after a hard fight and his subsequent election.

Mrs. Wilson's death in 1914, when the country was facing a grave international crisis, cast a pall of sorrow over the entire nation.

On December 18, 1915, the President married Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt, widow of a well known Washington business man.

His renomination was never questioned and the record made in his first four years in the White House brought about his re-election at the polls.

MURDER AT ARDEN LAST FRIDAY NIGHT.

Charles Garren Shoots and Kills O. L. Ledbetter, His Son-in-Law.
Now in Jail.

Saturday's Asheville Citizen Says:

After remaining out all night following the shooting of O. L. Ledbetter at Arden last night, Charles Garren, the dead man's father-in-law, and who is charged with the murder, came to the gates of the county jail at an early hour yesterday morning and demanded admittance. According to Deputy Sheriff L. E. Revis, who was dressing at the time, Garren told him that he wanted to get in and when Revis replied that the hour was too early for visitors, the Arden man replied: "I've killed a man and you have to let me in." Revis stated that he told Garren it was all right under those circumstances and Garren is now locked in a cell by himself.

He sent for Judge Thomas A. Jones and was clothed with his attorney for some time. When seen by a representative of the Citizen yesterday afternoon, Garren stated that he had been advised by his lawyer not to discuss the shooting. He did state that his age was sixty-one; that Ledbetter, his son-in-law, was about thirty-four and that they lived together. Ledbetter, he said, kept a store at Arden while he, Garren, was a farmer.

Garren advanced the information that there were but two witnesses to the shooting, his own wife, and Ledbetter's wife, his daughter, and that no other person was in the house at the time. He sat on the edge of his little iron cot while he talked and nervously fingered a magazine. His condition seemed to be that of a man just recovering from the effects of over-indulgence in whiskey and his eyes were bleared, and his face flushed. Garren's voice was tremulous and as he spoke his words came in an uncertain manner. It was plain that the great shock of the tragedy was still upon him.

According to a rumor yesterday the quarrel started over a mere argument as to whether a certain automobile had passed through Arden on Thursday, Garren objecting to his word being doubted and shooting before any one could grasp the significance of the fact that he had seized a weapon. It was found that two bullets struck Ledbetter, one entering the right side between the eighth and ninth ribs and probably piercing the spine, while the other bullet entered his left side. Dr. Walter E. Baker, who attended Ledbetter, stated that he died about an hour after the shooting. He called Sheriff Mitchell and Coroner E. R. Morris, and an inquest was held at once. The verdict of the coroner's jury was to the effect that Ledbetter came to his death by bullet wounds, inflicted by a pistol in the hands of Charles Garren.

The coroner's commitment papers will be sufficient to bind Garren over to Superior court, but if he desires a hearing before a magistrate, preliminary to a trial by a superior court judge he may have it.

Ledbetter is survived by a wife and two small children. He has been the proprietor of a store at Arden for some time and was for four years, during the administration of Sheriff Williams, deputy sheriff for Limestone township.

A CORRECTION.

In giving the vote for tax collector in West Hendersonville last week an error crept in. The vote should read:

Kuykendall.....	284
Brown.....	233
The way it appeared was as follows:
Kuykendall.....	180
Brown.....	141

The fault was with the proofreader and was not in accordance with the tabulated returns received at the office. The vote given was that cast in East Hendersonville.

ONE "CONGRESSWOMAN."

Messages of congratulations from suffrage leaders in many parts of the country poured into Missoula, Montana, for Miss Jeannette Rankin, republican, the first woman to be elected to congress. Miss Rankin's campaign managers contend that she has been successful by at least 2,000 majority.

Miss Rankin, who is small and slight, is a graduate of the University of Montana and the School of Philanthropy of Missoula. Miss Rankin is a native of North Carolina, it is said, having been born in Salisbury.
